Three-point program for Founders' Day observance, October 8

University alumni officers and members of the executive board are going all out to make this year's Founders' Day one of the most eventful in the history of the observance, said Mrs. C. C. Strimple, president of the alumni association.

With Mrs. Annie F. Jenkins of Dallas, wife of the founder of the university, and Dr. Walter N. Halsey of Appleton, Wisc., the first dean, returning for the program Thursday, alumni, faculty, friends and students are assured of one of the most interesting celebrations in recent years.

A feature of the program this year will be the unveiling of the two commemorative plaques which were mounted last summer. The unveiling, which will immediately follow the evening program, will be done by Mrs. Herbert Daniels, first May Queen, and Miss Ruth Saxton, alumni treasurer and Princess Attira of 1941. Mayor Butler will accept the plaque in behalf of the city.

Founders' Day activities will begin with a student convocation in the morning at 10:45. Classes will be dismissed. E. M. Hosman, convocation chairman, will introduce

The University of Omaha was first housed in the building shown in the upper left, known as Joslyn Hall. The founders of the university were successful in establishing high academic standards and in assembling a remarkable faculty for the young school, but the university was refused recognition by the North-Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools on the grounds that "facilities were inadequate." Almost immediately upon moving to the modern, built-in air-conditioned building, the university was accepted unanimously.

O. U. alums, now in service, make grade as commissioned officers

On active duty in more than one hundred military bases, both land and sea forces, are several hundred young men who until recently were students at the university.

Besides the many stationed in camps throughout the United States, these former students are serving the United Nations in England, Alaska, Australia, Hawaii, China, Puerto Rico, India, Iceland, the Canal Zone, Canada, the West Indies and several mid-ocean islands.

While the university does its best to keep track of these alumni, it is necessarily impossible to keep this information anywhere near "up to date." Still, of those whose ranks are known, more than half are commissioned officers. Among O. U. men in the army, there are fifty-four second lieutenants, fifteen first lieutenants, and three captains. Of the seventy known "non-coms," twenty-three are sergeants and twelve are corporals.

In the group now in the navy, the tendency for alums to be officers is even more pronounced. Thirty-five have notified the university of their rank, and fourteen of these are ensigns, three are lieutenants, junior grade. One is a lieutenant-commander; another is a chief specialist; the others are midshipmen and petty officers.

Ninety-nine are known to be putting their college training to good use in the air services, seventy-three with the army and twenty-six with the navy.

Greeks win 21 of 23 offices

U. students above national average in health-Andersen

"If all the youth of the nation were as physically fit as the students at the University of Omaha, we would have no difficulty recruiting the finest army in the world."

This statement was made by Dr. Maine C. Andersen, new student health director at the university, who last week completed the annual physical examination of all students.

"The examinations this year were made with the added view of determining how many of the boys would be able to pass the army and navy physical examination," he said.

"A negligible number of the students had serious or disqualifying defects. The percentage with disqualifying physical defects was below that usually found in the general population in the same age group. The number of students with

Beck, Foley are lone Barbwinners; 56% vote

Yesterday's election turned out to be a "Greek tragedy," with some two-dozen independent candidates the principal victims.

Greek nominees take over twenty-one of the twenty-three offices for which results were announced yesterday by the student council committee in charge of the election. (Homecoming Princess will not be known until Homecoming, October 16.)

Only Barb candidates to withdraw the Greek overwhelming were Paul Beck, senior vice-president, and John Foley, sophomore president.

Following is a complete list of the new office holders.

Senior class: Roger Boulden, president; Paul Beck, vice-president; Jane Kaiser, secretary-treasurer.

Home-study courses being sent to twenty-four towns

Home study courses sponsored by the university, which are proving increasingly popular with former students now in the armed forces, are now being sent to individuals in twenty-four towns, six states and one soldier in a foreign country, it was announced today by E. M. Hosman, who is in charge of the extension program.

Sociology and education courses are in most demand at this time, he said. Correspondence courses are arranged so that the student may complete his work as rapidly as his time will permit. Courses on the college level carry regular college credit.

Towns represented by correspondence students are Camp Claiborne, La., Council Bluffs, Bennington, Papillion, Malvern, Ia., Spencer, Ia., Ottumwa, Ia., Atlantic, Ia., Champaign, Ill., Missouri Valley, Ia., Thurman, Ia., Avoca, Ia., Norfolk, Nebr., Dannebrog, Nebr., Logan, Ia., Schuyler, Nebr., Kansas City, Kans., Hancock, Ia., Ainsworth, Nebr., Leshara, Nebr., Coin, Ia., Mandin, Ia., Savory, Wyo., and Lewis, Ia.

Joint military board visits Uni Wednesday

Wednesday, October 7, the university will be visited by a joint army-navy-marine corps board which is visiting two hundred universities and colleges in the seventh service command to present to students the functions, purposes, and programs of the various armed services. The meeting at the University of Omaha is being arranged at the request of Col. Raymond W. Briggs.

The board, consisting of five members, is headed by Lt. Frederick E. Engel, representing the various ground forces of the army. Other members representing the army air corps, the V-1, V-5, and V-7 programs of the navy (which includes naval aviation), the marine corps, and the coast guard.

No enlistments will be made by the board — its visit being solely advisory in character.

Classes will be excused from 8:55 a.m. until 10:40, and all men students will be required to attend an informal meeting in the auditorium at 9:00 whether they are members of the enlisted reserve or not.

Following the meeting, which will last approximately one hour, members of the board will be available for consultations in various faculty offices which will be assigned to them. They will answer questions concerning all aspects of their particular branch of the service.

Roderic B. Crane, assistant dean of the college of arts and sciences, now in charge of military information at the university, arranged the program for the board.

"This is an opportunity," said Mr. Crane, "for information both on enlistment and the opportunities for commissions in every branch of the service."

This meeting is provided exclusively for college students by the seventh service command. It is the only time this year that the university will be visited by military officers who are in a position to answer authoritatively all questions in regard to military service.

I suggest that all our men students prepare in advance any questions which may remain unanswered in their minds and that they take advantage of this special occasion.

The information provided at this meeting will be of benefit to faculty members in the counseling of their students."

The War and You!

FACULTIES IN THE WAR EFFORT

Los Angeles City college reports that 12 members of the faculty are now enlisted in the armed service and 6 more have withdrawn to take up civilian defense positions.

LOCKHEED INSTRUCTORS

From Los Angeles City college also comes word that Lockheed is sending instructors to teach aircraft classes in the college. Three courses taken together and combined in a ten weeks period give the necessary orientation for any type of work with defense plants.

A WARNING TO RADIO AUDIENCES

"Keep your shirt on when listening to war reports on the radio," says Texas university's expert in education by radio. His advice—(1) listen to every word; (2) don't become hysterical; (3) check the radio news with newspaper accounts; (4) note the source of the news; (5) don't report radio war news as facts; (6) regard opinion and conjecture as such.

COLLEGES AND THE WAR

"At no time in human history have universities seemed so important in the nation's effort as they are right now in the United States," says President C. A. Dykstra of the University of Wisconsin. "The government considers American institutions of higher learning as key centers in the war effort."

FROM DRAKE

Three of Drake university's buildings were taken over by the WAAC's October 1.

IN THE FIGHT

President Eversull of North Dakota Agricultural college reports that already 500 of the schools former students and graduates are in the armed service.

TIDBITS

A substantial increase in enrollment of women in engineering, drawing, the industrial arts generally, and in wood shop work is reported at the University of California.

Approximately one out of every three students at Hamilton college is taking special work intended to prepare him for military service.

First group of 1,600 enlisted members of the WAVES will be trained at the University of Wisconsin, Indiana university and Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college.

Did You Know That

William Linn, Phi Sig, is in flying school at Santa Anna, Calif.?

William Froshier is an aviation cadet at San Antonio, Tex.?

Kenny Bowyer and Gene Jorgenson are aviation cadets in the navy, and John F. Brown is an aviation cadet in the army?

THE CHANGING FUTURE

Let us face the changing future with fortitude. Our world is changing faster than it ever has and sometimes we are bewildered by these sudden changes. Often we are resentful of changes and cling to the old familiar ways so tenaciously that we are more brutally injured when we are finally torn away by the force of the inevitable change than we would have been had we been willing to walk hand-in-hand with time.

Since December 7, 1941, there is hardly a single thing in our lives that has not been changed. The family circle is changed, most of us have at least one who is in the armed forces. Our social life has changed, our conversation has changed, our commercial life has changed, we are rationed on sugar, and probably will be on gas, meat and other commodities soon; tires are no longer available, typewriters are more valuable than jewels—these are only a few of the things that have changed. The war has invaded every sanctuary we know, and most of the alumni are taking these invasions in their stride with faces front and courage high, but there are still some who resent the invasion of the war into our school and concern themselves greatly about the future of the liberal arts. For these I have made some inquiries and find that the liberal arts have not suffered by the addition of many applied arts. You can still obtain the same liberal art education at our university that you always could; the only difference is that "something has been added."

I would like to quote to you from "Time" of September 7. Under "education" is an article entitled, "Every Classroom a Citadel." It opens by saying that the U.S. educators heard tough talk from their government in the four-day Institute on Education and the War held recently in Washington. Paul V. McNutt told them curtly, "There is no excuse for any young man or woman to be in college preparing for any profession not directly useful to the war effort." Lieutenant-General Brehon B. Somervell said, "Let us be realistic. Every able-bodied boy is destined at the appointed age for the armed services. It is the job of the schools and colleges to provide the opportunity for every youth to equip himself for a place in winning the war. You must do this regardless of cost, time, inconvenience, the temporary side-tracking of non-war objectives, or even the temporary scrapping of peacetime courses . . . Every classroom is a citadel."

This is a hard pill for parents to take but surely every parent would rather have his son equipped for his place in this war than to have him hurled headlong and unprepared into this fracas.

We must have faith—faith that beyond this war lies peace; that the peace will be ours; that our way of life will be restored; and that our boys will return. We must have faith in our government, in our military leaders, in our schools, in ourselves. If we have faith, then we can with fortitude face the changing future.

Olga Jorgensen Strimple, President of the Alumni Association.

Borrowed.....

from the past is this editorial which appeared in the Gateway published October 1, 1917. Its message is reminiscent of the pleas and warnings today. In part it reads—

"The University of Omaha is now entering upon its ninth year of school work. There is nothing important about that but the fact that the conditions of the present school year, as brought about by the world war, are bound to affect the work of every student. The requirements of the student graduate, by the outside world, are not like those of yesterday. Tomorrow they will be more extensive and more exact. Everyone of us ought to realize that it is a great privilege to be in college at this time. And it is for this reason that we should waste neither time nor thought. He who does not make his time count in college now, is not true to his country, and, what is worse, in the eyes of the Creator, he is sinning against humanity.

"Let the freshman take this seriously, for he is just entering the halls of higher learning and consequently needs a little advice. Begin your college career right by getting the most out of your daily lessons—stay home nights and develop your mental powers while your physical self recuperates. Wake up, appreciate your opportunity. Next year fighting in this monstrous war for world freedom.

"As for the rest of the classes, your responsibilities are even greater. You are the examples by which the world will judge the University. You are the standard bearers of our young school. The wise and august seniors ought to heed this particularly, for their time is near at hand."

THE WASHLINE

Out of the excitement of the first three weeks of school have drifted but a few bits of fashion news. Because of the war, girls are wearing more practical creations, and fellows are making those suits last until their new ones come—all in one shade. However, some of the sharper outfits have inspired these notes:

Marilyn Davis is quite chic in her cherry red sweater and plaid skirt. Hazel McConnell has a gray-blue lastex sweater from the discriminating boy-friend in St. Louis. Nell Evans is really the charmer with her light blue sports dress ornamented by shining silver buttons.

"Dramatic black" is the new shade for Shirley Storm's silk after-dark dress. Dorothy Thompson's wolf-gray (yes, that's the color) dress and turban is definitely the thing.

"Dutch" Stepanek's novel cake-icing-pink sweater is tops in any fashion parade; and, speaking of sweaters, have you noticed the neaties Evelyn Norberg has been strutting? Believe it or not, she knits all of her own.

Among the men, Bob Haffke is sporting an oh-so-smooth gabardine topcoat, while his buddy, Burress, resembles an esky ad in his fine gray flannel. Notice the super sport jackets that Jack Crater wears, very long. Dick Ovington's gray shark-skin suit is quite smart, as is Walt Graham's wine-colored cord shirt.

Redskins out for Jackrabbit hides

Leave for Brookings by bus this morning

Coach Sed Hartman's rookie-studded squad makes its initial bid for 1942 conference honors when the Indians tangle with the Jackrabbits of South Dakota State at Brookings tomorrow. The squad will travel by bus, leaving here Friday at 9:30 a. m. and returning at 8:30 Sunday morning.

After two full-length scrimmages this week, the team looks to be built around four returning lettermen: Rog Boulden and Len Graham in the line, Jim Oglesby and Clarence Smith in the backfield. Coach Hartman hopes that the presence of these veterans and of Bob Dymacek, George Zemunski and Wayne Peterson will keep the yearlings from getting "buck fever" in their opener.

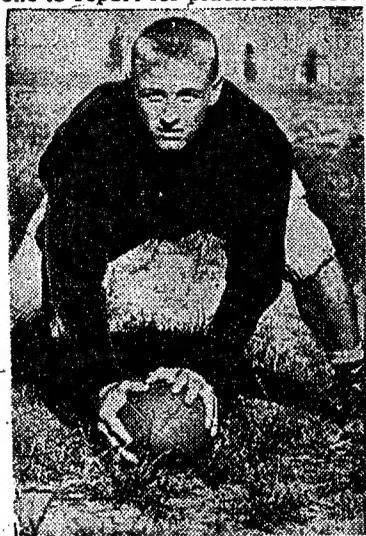

The Jackrabbits will be making their first home stand of the season. They dropped a game to Youngstown and another to Iowa Teachers, pre-season favorite, but made a good showing each time.

The Sodak squad will be at full strength except for Lars Overskei, senior halfback, and Duane Ralph, frosh end, who have sprained ankles. Both may remain on the sidelines Saturday.

REAL-LIFE DRAMA: Three years ago in the month of September, when the pigskins begin to float through the air, a small, tow-headed freshman reported to Coach Sed Hartman to check out football equipment. Sed encourages everyone to report for practice. He issued a suit and was surprised to hear that the 150-pound lad wanted to take a crack at center. Before him loomed such greats as Harold Johnk and Joe "Red" Mazzeri. Under the careful tutelage of Mazzeri and Coach Hartman, this lad showed up well on defense and steadily improved as a passer.

In his sophomore year, this spindly kid barely weighed 155. He could play heads-up ball for half a game, but didn't have the stamina to play the full sixty minutes. Dr. Paul Reed, team physician at that time, took a personal interest in the boy, and wanted to see his name linked with Johnk's and Mazzeri's.

During the Christmas of 1940, Dr. Reed succeeded in getting the fellow's consent to an operation and removed his tonsils and adenoids, waiving payment "until you finish medical school and set up offices of your own." The boy stayed at 155 for some time, then began his ascent to the "huskie" class. In 1941 he checked in at 172 and played remarkable ball, living up to the expectations of Sed and Dr. Reed. The majority of his followers expected him to be named as all-conference center, and the question why he was not named one of the select eleven is still a puzzle in their minds.

This year, Hartman's team is being built around this senior center, whom you know as Rog Boulden, and any opponent attempting to buck the line will come in contact with 175 pounds of solid muscle that will stop at nothing.

EPILOGUE: With the help of Hartman and Dr. Reed, Boulden to a large extent "made" himself one of the outstanding athletes in the North-Central and in the history of the university. Indian "rookies" may look to Boulden for our school's best example of rapid development.

Indians to make first home stand against Simpson, October 9

An invading Simpson college eleven from Indianola, Ia., will hold a pow-wow with the Indians at Benson stadium in the first home game of the season, October 9 at 8:00 p.m.

Eight Simpson lettermen and a new contingent of freshmen will be out to avenge the 20-0 defeat they received in the 1941 meeting. The Redmen has been polishing between the two teams. Coach Casey has his boys on timing, blocking, and new plays in preparation for the coming fray.

Some of the Iowa veterans are being used at new posts. Neil Zimmerman, lineman last year, is being coached for the fullback position. Charles Abrahams, who was used at the end position in the late games in 1941, will probably start there. Crees, Boughton, Farnham, and Rabuck will see action in the back field. The two Denharts, C. H. and Don, with Piffer, Ackley, and Scott will probably be in the starting lineup also.

Both teams will have had one game's experience before they meet. Simpson is a non-conference team, and the results will have no bearing on team standings.

Campen, alumni vice president; C. M. Wilhelm and A. A. Lamoreaux, both members of the first board.

The annual dinner will be held at 6 p.m. at the University. Miss Fern Gilbert will read a history of the class of 1917. Dr. Halsey will speak.

The public program will begin at 8:15 in the auditorium with Mrs. Strimple presiding. Mayor Butler will accept the bronze plaques, and Joseph Scholtz, regional director of the OCD, will give the principal address. President Rowland Haynes will welcome the group.

Also on the stage will be W. Dale Clark, president of the board of regents; Mrs. Jenkins, Dr. Halsey, John Latenser, architect of the new building; Robert Spellmeyer, president of the student council; Mrs. Daniels, Miss Saxton and the musicians, Joan Mengedoht, Faith Ryan, Mary Alice Johnson and Mary Fitzsimmons.

Members of the student council will take visitors on a tour of the building following the program. Feathers, women's pep organization, will serve as ushers for the evening program.

Erickson heads cheers

Don Erickson heads the cheerleaders named for the coming year by the Feathers, it was announced Wednesday by Marion Peck, chairman of the cheerleader committee.

Shirley Buchanan and Phyll Iverson are to be in charge of entertainment between halves at the football games this fall, another responsibility of the Feathers organization.

The other cheerleaders are Morry Stamm, Hollis Wilson and Hazel McConnell. Regular practice each week will be required of the cheerleaders this year, who will make their first appearance at the Founders' Day convocation.

Time in EVERSHARP'S "TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT"

Many former University students now in civilian and military life were busier than usual last week. Marriages, military leaves, and WAAC enlistments were numbered among their activities.

Corporal and Mrs. Dick Christiansen visited the school last week. Mrs. Christiansen was the former Virginia Combs, member of Sigma Chi Omicron sorority. Cpl. Christiansen is stationed in Alaska.

Lt. and Mrs. Robert Hinchcliff, now living in Alexandria, Louisiana, also visited the University. Lt. Hinchcliff was a member of Theta Phi Delta; Mrs. Hinchcliff, the former Arlene Ackerman, belonged to Sigma Chi Omicron.

Several couples announced their engagements recently. Miss Harriet Williams, Pi Omega Pi sorority member, announced her engagement at a luncheon last week to Mr. Robert Hudecek, aviation cadet, stationed near Santa Anna, Cal.

Miss Jane Kaiser, Pi Omega Pi, announced her betrothal to Herbert Cannell, who was graduated from the university this summer. Miss Kathryn Tipton, Sigma Chi Omicron, and Jack Green, Phi Sigma Phi, air cadet at Lubbock Field, Texas, are also engaged. Barbara Lee of Lincoln announced her engagement to Lt. Walter Plummer, former university student who was recently graduated from Ft. Benning, Georgia.

Several former students, now in military duty, are home on leave. Lt. Bruce Macalister stopped in Omaha en route to his station at Camp Roberts. Wade Knapp of the F.B.I., stationed at Louisville, Ky., and Lt. John Munt of the ordnance department, Macon, Ga., are home on leave, as is Ensign Burton Trexler, flight instructor at Jacksonville.

Four women ex-students are now enlisted for military duty. Lt. Mary Jakway, Pi Omega Pi alumna, is in the army nursing corps at Fitzsimmons Field, Denver; and Lt. Virginia Gustafson is at Camp Carson, Colorado Springs, Colo.

minor or remediable defects was again far below the average for the general population in the same age group. There was not a single detected case of venereal disease and all the Wasserman reactions for syphilis were negative.

"It is encouraging to see such a large group of physically fit young people," Dr. Aitersen declared.
